About YWCA Southeast Wisconsin

YWCA SEW serves more than 12,000 individuals each year through its mission of eliminating racism and empowering women. YWCA SEW fulfills this mission by providing economic empowerment services in the areas of employment readiness and adult education, primarily serving individuals facing poverty and discrimination. At the same time, YWCA SEW offers racial justice programming that educates businesses and the community about systemic racism and ways to address it. The ultimate goal is to equip people to take action against injustice where and when they can. This combination of economic empowerment and racial justice programming is YWCA SEW's formula for creating a more just and equitable community.
