YWCA SOUTHEAST WISCONSIN WELCOMES COMMUNITY LEADERS TO ITS BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Racial justice organization also elects new Board Chair and Vice Chair

MILWAUKEE, WI – YWCA Southeast Wisconsin (SEW) announces the appointment of five new members to its Board of Directors and the election of new officers. The new Board members beginning their terms in January 2021 are:

- Erin L. Henry, PhD, Senior Director, Venture Platform, NM Future Ventures & Cream City Venture Capital
- Danielle Johnson, MSW, Senior Program Associate, The Johnson Foundation at Wingspread
- Jaquilla J. Ross, MPA, Owner and Operator, ROSS Financial, LLC
- Tammi M. Summers, PhD, Vice-President of Diversity, Equity and Inclusion, Gateway Technical College
- Alonzo Walker, MD, (ret) Ruth Teske Professor of Surgical Oncology Medical College of Wisconsin

“The addition of these regional leaders to our Board of Directors comes at a time when YWCA Southeast Wisconsin is expanding its work, continuing to strategically link our direct economic empowerment services with our community-facing racial justice work and broaden our collaborations across all sectors,” noted Kimberley Noon, Board Chair.

YWCA SEW’s Board of Directors also elected a new Chair and Vice Chair for 2021. Lindsey Davis, partner at Quarles & Brady will serve as the new Board Chair and Tiffany Strong Salaam, Director of Learning and Development at Advocate Aurora Healthcare, is the new Board Vice Chair. Their Committee Chairs for 2021 are: Raven Eggson-Washington (Governance), Gary Hollander (Program Review Committee), Erin Loofboro (Development), and Ann Przbysz (Finance).

President & CEO Ginny Finn added, “We are pleased to welcome our newest Board members who bring a wealth of knowledge and expertise to an already remarkable team. Their invaluable skillsets and commitment to our work will be vital contributions to driving our mission of eliminating racism and empowering women forward.”
